[Total: 68 Average: 4.5] Finding a perfect planner you don't have to be expensive. In fact, if you have a printer, you can try free print and set yourself up for this year at a relatively minimal cost (depending on how expensive your printer ink is!). Philofaxy's free printed planner comes in a variety of formats and sizes. They are designed to be used for ring binders (Filofax etc). Homemakers Daily also has several free printable pages for Filofax and Franklin Covey binary, in daily and weekly formats. Also at the bottom of this post he is download for my favorite weekly planner format. Productive Flourishing planners differ from regular planners because they are designed for people working for projects/tasks rather than to timetables. Every month they make their planner selection available for free download, or you can buy all year if you don't want to wait for them out every month. Spirit Planners have their free weekly planner downloads, or you can buy their bound version. Heads-up: Free printable has a starting week Monday but their 2015-bound planners to buy have Sunday's starting week. I have to admit I printed some of these free pages and have played with them this week. Here's a bunch I didn't try myself but looked good: L2E The Handmade Home Organized Home PrintablePlanners.net DIY Planner templates CrazyLittleProjects not only has great print but also some outstanding planning advice. Emily Ley Scroll down this post from GlueSticksBlog to see links to all of the pages she used to create free printable planners. He uses a monthly calendar from Miss Tina (version 2015 in links). Scattered Squircoon has a variety of unwanted prints. What is your favorite free printed planner? This is a category of new posts for me and one that I plan to keep doing if there is enough interest. About a year ago, I started using paper planners after discovering a community of planners through Kristina from Pretty, Shiny, Sparkly. I didn't want to invest in expensive binding directly from the bat because I didn't know if it was something I would continue to use. Instead I got this PlanAhead Organizer for $15.00 on Amazon. I've learned it's a dupe for Franklin Covey Compact and I really liked it so much I've never upgraded! It comes with silence and unwanted mines will run out in September. Unfortunately, certain planners are stopped and you can no longer buy remittances for it. So I decided to design my own similar ones. They are very basic so you can personalize them with washi tape and adhesives however you want. I prefer my layout to have a month on two pages, with weeks on two pages in between. Since there will be a blank page in between, I just make sheets easily lined and docked at the beginning and end of the month to scratch the notes. Each set you print will be enough for the entire month. Click Here for This Page's PDF File is 4.25 x 6.75 which is the correct size for Franklin Covey Compact or Forward Planner I use. If you're using Filofax Personal, you should be able to shrink the image about 94% to get it the right size. Files are provided so when you print 2 per page, back to back, they're in the right massage. I've included screen shots of print settings as well. I used Foxit Reader and I had to set my margins to a funny number. You just want to make sure the zoom is at 100% so they print the right size (unless you need to shrink them to fit Filofax Filofax in this case set the zoom to about 94%).
